Nomination Form

AgCeptional Woman of the Year Award

An AgCeptional woman is someone who has made exceptional contributions to agriculture. The term AgCeptional pertains to any aspect of agriculture where excellence is demonstrated. By design, there are no specific criteria that have to be followed in order to nominate someone for the AgCeptional Woman of the Year Award. You simply have to believe that a woman is AgCeptional and then tell us why.

A selection committee with representatives from various agricultural entities will review the nominations, analyze all factors and then select the strongest candidate. The following categories may help you to organize your thoughts for considering your nominee's strengths and contributions.

- Contribution to Family Operation
- Contribution/Service to Community
- Advocacy
- Involvement in Agricultural Organizations
- Leadership
- Promotion of Industry
- Achievements
- Creative Talent
- Business Success (Growth, Profit, Position, Diversity etc.)
- Other (Choose for yourself what to write about)
